In the teaching of foreign languages, within the framework of the implementation of the Law of the Republic of Uzbekistan "On Education" and the National Program of Personnel Training, a comprehensive system of teaching foreign languages, that is, a harmoniously developed, educated, a system aimed at forming a modern-thinking young generation and further integration of the republic into the world community was created. Since the years of independence, more than a thousand foreign language specialists have been trained, multimedia textbooks on English, German and French have been prepared for high school students of general education schools, electronic resources on learning English in primary grades have been prepared. more than a thousand language classrooms were equipped in general education schools, vocational colleges and academic lyceums.

At the same time, the analysis of the current system of organizing foreign language learning shows that educational standards, curricula and textbooks are fully in line with the requirements of the times, in particular, the use of advanced information and media technologies. is not responding. Education is mainly conducted in traditional ways. Alexandrova A.Yu. According to information, special types of tourism include:

1. Urban tourism.
2. Business tourism.
3. Rural tourism.
4. Ecological tourism.
5. Sports tourism.
6. Pilgrimage tourism

We need to understand right now that creating an organizational action program is a necessary and mandatory requirement for the field in order to determine the future position of special types of tourism that have great opportunities and potential for mass development of tourism. The general plan "concept" for the development of special types of tourism is presented above. The next task is to define the perspective of these species, to develop an organizational action "Program" for their development. The development of methodological bases for the training of translators for the field of tourism is one of the most urgent issues today. One of the important tasks is to improve the activities of translators, to train them in the profession, to find a solution to the problems of teaching foreign languages perfectly.

The methodological basis of the research is the system approach, the methods of scientific abstraction, analysis and synthesis, the dialectic method of studying economic phenomena, and provisions for development strategies for tourist destinations in the unstable economic environment. To solve specific tasks the following methods were used in the article: theoretic generalization, logical, scientific abstraction, association and analogy (in order to study and generalize the methodological basis for strategic development of enterprises of the tourism and hospitality industry; the methods of system analysis, generalization, and comparison (in order to study the methodological approaches and methods of assessing efficiency of management in businesses of the tourism and hospi-tality industry). The information base of the research included legislative and statutory acts, statistical data from public authorities and self-government bodies, scientific publications of Russian and foreign scientists about problems related to the elaboration of develop-ment strategies for enterprises of the tourism and hospitality in-dustry [7]. The proposed methodological tools for the elaboration of devel-opment strategies for enterprises of the tourism and hospitality industry led the authors to the conclusion that strategic manage-ment, given its methodological essence, i.e. the conceptual ap-proach and panoramic vision, cannot give an exact and clear view of the industry's future. At the same time, strategic management cannot be limited to a set of universal and routine rules, proce-dures and schemes. In addition, strategic management requires substantial efforts, time and resources to the achievements of en-terprises of the tourism and hospitality industry remarkable.
