INTRODUCTION

Since our country gained its independence and is in the process of building a legal, democratic state, and a civil society, the main direction of the policy has been dedicated to the protection of people and their interests, for this purpose, serious attention has been paid to the issue of improving the legal culture of the population. was given In this regard, in addition to the adoption of the above-mentioned legal documents, various legal institutions were established in the country in order to ensure their implementation. Representative of the Oliy Majlis on human rights in the Republic of Uzbekistan - Ombudsman, National Human Rights Office of the Republic of Uzbekistan to collect information on human rights violations in the Republic of Uzbekistan center is one of them. In these documents and legal institutions, a comprehensive and regular system of legal culture formation has been created so that all layers of the population can achieve legal literacy, have a high level of legal knowledge and be able to apply it in everyday life.

LITERATURE REVIEW

In particular, we can see that under the decrees, orders and legal documents issued by the head of our state, attention is being paid to all layers of the population in the Republic of Uzbekistan and they are directly supported. In particular, we can learn from the following words of our President Sh.M. Mirziyoev about the social protection of women; "When we talk about the female race, which is dear and respectable to all of us, first of all, we bow before the image of the Mother who gave birth to us and raised us with white milk. The most deserving of the word holy on earth is, first of all, Mother. Our nation always honors and honors the figure of the mother. This is evidenced by the fact that magnificent statues were built in honor of mothers in our country [1].

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY AND EMPIRICAL ANALYSIS

The Republic of Uzbekistan is boldly moving towards building a humane legal democratic state and civil society. The implementation of this noble, but complex task requires everyone living in our Republic to be socially active, to live and work selflessly to build a free and prosperous life, a free and prosperous Motherland. This requirement, which is placed on the agenda of national democratic development, directly applies to women. Today, in the world of education, there is a special issue called the interest of women, and it is not for nothing that great importance is attached to studying it and finding a solution. We all clearly understand that such a society will not have a future if women are not given enough attention. Any country brings economic, social and political systems together through its development strategy, that is, long-term state programs.

"At present, among the women of our country there are 514 doctors of science, 6 academicians, 15 Heroes of Uzbekistan, 17 senators, 15 deputies of the Legislature, as well as the fact that more than 23 percent of local council deputies are women. it should be noted. Today, 72% of those working in the fields of science, education, health care, culture and art in our country - pay attention to this, 72% - are women. The majority of neighborhood leaders and activists are women. More than 8,500 of our mothers and sisters are actively working as consultants on issues of religious enlightenment and spiritual and moral education in the neighborhoods" [1].

Significant results have been achieved in the country in terms of education, gender equality, health care and other issues, which are directly related to the concern for women's well-being. All these measures are primarily aimed at unconditionally fulfilling the provisions of the Convention, the Beijing Declaration and the Platform for Action, as well as the final document of the 23rd special session of the UN General Assembly "Women in the year 2000: equality between men and women, development and peace in the 21st century". The Beijing Platform for Action, adopted at the IV World Conference on the Status of Women in 1995, is particularly important. Its introduction and 12 chapters are the most comprehensive program on women's rights, assessing the situation of women globally and exploring strategies, policies and measures to realize women's rights worldwide. "Taking into account the living conditions of women, we actively continue the state policy of providing employment, creating all-round opportunities to ease the burden of our sisters, and increasing the role and influence of women in our social and political life. we know that it is our most important task" [1].

Improving the condition of women, protecting their freedom, rights, interests and health is one of the priorities of the country's policy. "Because the meaning of the national policy is to turn the state policy aimed at the social support of women into the work of the whole society" [4].

CONCLUSION
