Theory of intercultural communication

Marjona Mukhammadjonova
Student of UZSWLU

Annotation:

In the article the author by language learning through person own culture formation, human qualities improvement, other people culture to understand through present period important has been tolerance qualities have to be possible illuminated

Key words:

Language, culture, languages teaching and learning, intercultural communication , ethnology and cultural anthropology .

Scientists use the term " culture " . different point of view from the point of view they explain . Edward Hall culture " people life style , they by studied behavior, relationships and material items samples as a sum" describes. S.Schulz culture as much as possible describing gives: " Culture to people life and themselves to understand help to give in order to common to habits have has been people of the group knowledge and faith own into takes all in humans that's it similar knowledge available, that's it with together, people own language about knowledge the owners is" culture and language concepts nearby and indispensable concepts is considered so, languages teaching and in learning culture teaching , custom and traditions account get main from requirements is one To all of us It is known that the present period foreign their languages learning not only personal need, perhaps universal important have has been event saying confession is being done . The language to know this that's it in the language speaker people representatives with complete to communicate enter means that it takes not because , above as we mentioned , the language and culture , people traditions , daily marriage style the language learning , language to speak and the language to understand big effect shows . In this process while cross-cultural communication formation present of the day languages in learning attention focus important has been factor is considered Cross-cultural communication in formation each one of the person separately social and psychological properties have that account get necessary _ These are the features and " only to each other comparison only through manifestation will be and this to compare done increase for cultural contact to be need". Cultural communication each one of the person to himself special and that's it with together another to individuals , others the nation representatives similar that manifestation to do service does and that's it through a person in society own position and place set takes. Cross-cultural communication theory - different language cultures representatives between mutually effect types analysis to do , communicative mutually effect as a result positive or negative effect showing factors learning and another problems. Cross-cultural communication theory contact models and functions, language and culture, culture and civilization between relations, cultures typology of culture oral and oral didn't happen signs of the world picture, language personality, stereotypes and their classifications learns of stereotypes known one event or fact, artifact perception reach as a result influence, cross-cultural contact of the theory another kindred spirit sciences with ratio and others dialogue, his of participants communicative abilities cultural in terms of determined so significant differences conditions done is increased differences communicative of the event success or to failure significant level effect does. In this communicative competence when you say in communication applied symbolic systems and their work rules are also communicative, mutually effect principles about knowledge is understood. Cross-cultural communication his participants directly in touch one different culture within communication in doing of those who use difference who does special linguistic options and discursive from strategies use with is described . Often used " intercultural the term communication usually two or from him more than in culture some one to himself special event to learn hint does and different culture representatives communication to do ability compare addition meaning have.

Cross-cultural communication a person professional of culture indispensable is part of Entrepreneurship communication culture business partners in the middle efficient to cooperation help gives. Interesting that is , many foreign such as " communication (communication) science " in countries scientific direction is developing. This scientific direction linguistics, psycholinguistics , sociolinguistics, rhetoric, linguistics and cultural studies and others point of view in terms of contact different types and forms learns. This the subject learning long and difficult is a process diary structure and relationships, both interpersonal and international, change in the process.

Literature:

1. AZZI Assaad E. and KLEIN O. Psychology social and intergroup relations , Paris, Dunod . 1998.

2. Hall E. The Paradox of Culture // In the Name of Life. Essays in Honor of Erich Fromm. New York , 1971 .

3. Yusupova , F. _ M . (2021). On the peculiarities of teaching the Russian language in a different national environment. Academic research in educational sciences, 2(6), 1324-1329.

4. ET Hall. The silent language. – New York: Anchor Books, 1990.

5. Schultz S. Managing corporate communication: a cross-cultural approach. Macmillan International Higher Education, 2003.

WORDLY
KNOWLEDGE